THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

Evening Edition.

☞ See Fourth Page, for interesting Reading

☞ Mr. A. C. Ives, of Augusta, is dead.

☞ Thomaston and Griffin are to have a literary discussion.

☞ The first strawberries in Savannah sold at nearly 10 cents each.

☞ The Monroe Advertiser votes for Griffin for the meeting of the Press Association.

☞ The planters around Augusta are selling their gold, and investing in railroad securities.

☞ To abandon rights wrested from us by fraud as hopelessly destroyed, and to be silent under usurpation and tyranny while free speech and a free press are still allowed us, is to do the work of our enemies almost as effectually as openly to desert to them.—Augusta Constitutionalist.

☞ The Sandersville Georgian votes for Augusta for the meeting of the Press Association. This paper says the planters are preparing for large grain crops. The use of commercial manures will be limited, and barnyards and other manures will be more general. The freedmen are working well.

New Hampshire.

In the Gubernatorial election in 1870, Stearns, Republican, was elected by nearly ten thousand majority over Bedell, Democrat. In 1869, the Republican Congressional candidates were all elected by the following majorities: First District, 1,762; Second District, 1,647; Third District, 863.

WANT TO MAKE $5,000.—The Montgomery Mail says that since the law was passed in Alabama, giving every woman $5,000 whose husband has been killed by the Ku-Klux, lots of female carpet-baggers are coaxing their husbands to go out in the woods, hoping they may be Ku-Kluxed. Extensive emigration is expected in the State from New England this spring, on account of the $5,000.

THE DEMOCRACY.

ITS PLATFORM, PRINCIPLE, HONESTY AND CONSISTENCY.

[From the Baltimore Gazette.]

The New York World, very anxious, as usual, to know which way the wind is going to blow, puts out a feeler, in a very weak editorial article, to test the disposition of the Southern people. It is already looking forward to the Presidential election of 1872. It doubtless feels assured that, if all the opponents of the Radical party, all those who are antagonistic to it from education or principle, all those who are disgusted with it, because they have had no share of the plunder, vote solidly against it, the election of an opposition candidate must be secured. In the interests of itself, and its supporters, the World puts out an anchor to windward, and gives a pharisaical warning which is perfectly refreshing. It says:

"Some of the old Whigs and recent Republican recruits who now act with the Democratic party are the most violent extremists among us. This is a reason why the party should lean upon its old leaders, whose consistent fidelity protects them against suspicion when they counsel the abandonment of dead issues. Fresh converts are seldom safe counsellors. Having a new character to establish and a new confidence to gain, they are tempted to put on clothes of last year's cut and fashion as an atonement for not wearing them when they were the prevailing style of the party."

And now, we ask, pray where would the World be, if the party took its advice? Is it an old leader? Is it not a fresh convert? And has it ever yet succeeded in establishing a character—in its religious era, in its Republican days, or in the various phases of its so-called Democracy?

Like all new converts, the World is overzealous, and, in its eagerness to show its sincerity, it fails to hide the hollowness of its professions behind the flimsy veil of party devotion. The people of the South know the World and the party it represents. They recollect the men who, in 1860, encouraged them to revolt, and then, when war came, either deserted openly—as General Dix did—to the ranks of the enemy, or, worse still, abandoned the men and the principles they pretended to uphold. We all recollect the tactics of the New York World Democracy in 1864, and again in 1868. In 1864, General McClellan, the candidate of the World clique, repudiated the platform of the party, and in 1868, the World, in its agony, openly repudiated the Presidential candidate, when it was too late to do any good, and when its action showed either paltry weakness or wretched insincerity.

We want no such tactics over again. We have had "little games" enough, and we have no desire to be again sacrificed to the interests of pet candidates or particular cliques. If the World is anxious to know what is to be the platform of the South, we will cheerfully give it the information, which we recommend particularly to its attention. It is high principle, straight-forward honesty, and unswerving consistency. It is to bury the past, to accept the present and to trust the future, in the profound faith, that there is nothing so certain as the unforeseen, and that, in the thousand chances and changes of life, there is always something in store for those who pursue a high purpose with a strong will. We want no platform, but an honest leader and manly principle. We accept negro voting, under protest, and wait for time to pass its verdict upon it.

We have turned over to the Republicans the rotten plank of annexation, which will one day be as fatal to the country as it proved to the South. We are opposed to military despotism, to the interference of Federal authority at the polls, to the consolidation of power, to the distribution of the public lands among party plunderers, to the squandering of the public funds, to high tariffs, to corrupt legislation, and to knavery and corruption of every kind, in whatever shape they may raise their hydra heads. This, surely, is platform enough. Our great strength lies in an united front. Let us attack solidly, and when we have routed the enemy, it will be time enough to prepare means for maintaining our position. The efforts of the World to forestall coming events are as impolitic as they are shallow. We recommend it to the advice of Talleyrand to a young diplomat—Et surtout pas trop de zele. Let us rather follow the example which Wellington set, when he bided his time until the hour came. Then he cried, "Up guards, and at them," and Waterloo was won.

Coaxing Negro Congressmen into Back Seats.

When the drawing for seats took place in the House, last Saturday, Ben Butler did not happen to be present. All the best seats were, of course, selected upon that occasion, and Butler had to take a back seat. This did not suit him, and to-day he was on the lookout for a more eligible position. Among the fortunate ones at the drawing, on Saturday, were the negro members from South Carolina, Messrs. DeLarge and Rainey. They selected seats near General Banks, on the left of the Speaker, about half way up the hall, in a commanding position. In scanning the hall, Butler's eye rested upon the seat occupied by DeLarge. He immediately coveted it, and going to the negro asked him if he had any objections to exchange seats. The negro seeing it was Butler who addressed him, modestly inquired.

"Where is your seat, Massa Butler?"

"Back there," said Ben, pointing to a seat away in the rear.

"Well, I'll see about it," said the negro.

In the meantime, Sergeant-at-Arms Ordway, who was very persuasive with the negroes, went to De Large and succeeded in inducing him to change seats with Butler. Ginnery Twichell, another Massachusetts member, who had been unlucky in drawing a seat, seeing the success of Butler with one of the negroes, concluded that he would try a similar game with the other. He immediately started for Rainey, the other lucky colored brother from South Carolina, and asked him if he had any objection to take a little further back. Rainey was a member of the last House, and coming in late in the session, had been assigned a back seat. Unlike De Large, he had had some experience, and he had no disposition to repeat it.

"Mr. Twitchell," he said, "I would rather sit here."

"Well, you see," said Ginnery, with a smile that was childlike and bland, "you won't have much occasion to address the Speaker, and one of those seats back there will suit just as well for writing letters. You know our State has always stood up for the rights of the colored people."

"Thank you," said Rainey, "I think I would rather sit here, if it's all the same."

Ginnery went away, laboring under the impression that a few weeks in the House has a wonderful effect upon a negro.—Cor. N. Y. Herald.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—In the House, a terrible colloquial collision occurred this morning, between Blaine and Butler, Blaine descending from the chair. The denunciations were mutual and hearty.

Butler said he had been attacked before with more ingenuity, but never with more malignity.

Morton presented a memorial from the Republican Association of this city, declaring that the colored people were deterred from going South by the Ku-Klux.

The caucus of the Senate this morning reached no result.

PRUSSIA.

BERLIN, March 16.—There was a long conference at the foreign office, Von Arnim was present, and received full instructions regarding the final treaty to be negotiated at Brussels.

ENGLAND.

LONDON, March 16.—A Lille special says the battle-fields on the north of France threaten to become a pestilence. Bodies are floating in the ditches and marshes.

It is rumored that Ricciotti Garibaldi is in Paris.

The Time's special reports the presence of numerous Garibaldians in Paris has a disquieting effect upon the population.

The Best Way to Advertise.

Discussing a proposition now before the Legislature to incorporate a company in the city of New York, to be called "The New York Advertising Company," who are to be authorized to erect on the streets and sidewalks hundreds of posts and columns upon which bills may be posted by all who buy the company's right to their use, the Evening Post makes some sensible remarks on the subject of advertising. The editor says:

"The best and cheapest mode of Advertising in the world is that in the newspapers. Every successful advertiser will say this. Seed strewn there—if the seed is good for anything—always brings up a crop of some value, most generally a hundred fold. Placarding the dead-walls and showering hand-bills among the people are auxiliaries in advertising, but it is doubtful whether, as a rule, they more than pay the expense, while there is no doubt that they are a nuisance. The blankest of dead-walls is only disfigured by posters, provoking, in the well regulated mind, a sense of aversion to the man who so advertises and the article upon whose excellencies he expatiates; while as to hand-bills, nothing so prejudices a citizen against going to see any show or buying any goods as the ugly slips of paper thrust at him from all quarters eloquently recommending him to do those things."

SUMNER VS. GRANT.—Sumner declares indiscriminately to his visitors that Grant ought to be impeached and will be impeached, and a few night since at a dinner, where were present the representatives of foreign Governments, he met the mention of the President's name for renomination with a similar declaration, in language so strong that the whole table was startled. He is known to have filled his forthcoming speech with expressions toward the President of a disrespectful and insulting character, and these he has read to Senators and others who have called upon him.—N. Y. Times.

ORGAN BUILDING IN GEORGIA.—The Sparta Times has this paragraph:

Prof. Stanford is now building a splendid pipe organ for the Baptist Church at Jewell's Mills. It will be, from what we can learn, the first instrument of the kind ever built in Georgia, and we can vouch from what we know of the Professor's abilities, that it will be a very fine instrument.

☞ After decapitating Senator Sumner, General Grant presided at a grand dinner party at the White House. When Tell was told that Gesler had seized old Melctal, and torn out his eyes, he exclaimed:

He would dine after that, and say a grace,
Good heaven! to tear a man's eyes out, and then
Thank God! My staff! He'd have his wine, too. How
The man could look at it, and drink it off,
And not grow sick at the color on't!

WASHINGTON, March 9.—It is now agreed, on all hands, that there is no longer any hope for the success of the Santo Domingo-annexation project.—Dispatch to the New York Tribune.

☞ Train says he will be the next President. Why not? The country took its last President from the gutter. Perhaps it will improve, though, to take its next one from the jail.

ON and after March 8th, 1871, Mr. E. B. Floyd is associated with me as a partner in the Live Jewelry Store. The name and style of firm from the above date is Sharp & Floyd.

GEO. SHARP, JR.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To my friends and the public, it is with great pleasure I announce the name of Mr. Floyd as a partner in my business. Mr. F. is a practical, experienced watchmaker and a live jeweler. His close connection with leading jewelry manufactures, for the past eleven years, and his experience and capital, added to the Live Jewelry Store, will enable the new firm to offer inducements to purchasers in style, quality and variety far superior to all efforts made heretofore.

It is the intention of our firm to lead the market in all new styles as fast as they are introduced by the factories, and as we shall buy exclusively for cash, we feel we can offer goods in our line on better terms than they can be had elsewhere in the State. Our motto shall continue the same as the old firm—first-class goods, quick sales and small profits.

Thanking my friends for their generous support in the past, and their kind appreciation of my humble efforts to establish, in this city, a first-class, honest, reliable and legitimate Jewelry trade, and asking a continuance of their favors for the new firm.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

THE CAROLINA FERTILIZER!

CAROLINA FERTILIZER.
TRADE MARK

IS MADE FROM THE

PHOSPHATES OF SOUTH CAROLINA,

AND is pronounced by various Chemists, one of the best MANURES known. It was extensively used in most of the Cotton-growing States last season, and in a great number of trials, in comparison with other leading Fertilizers, proved superior to every other.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA PHOSPHATES

Are remains of extinct land and sea animals, and possess qualities of the greatest value to the Agriculturist. Pamphlets containing description of this

REMARKABLE DEPOSIT,

With engravings of Fossils found in it, and testimonials proving the superiority of the Fertilizer, will be forwarded on appliation.

Extract from article in Rural Carolinian, February number, 1871, giving details of experiments with fifteen different Fertilizers:

"From the above experiments and their results, I almost reach some conclusions which may prove of interest to others.

"First—That Peruvian Guano, which has been considered the standard for comparison for all commercial Fertilizers, fails to produce as much cotton as a Fertilizer claiming to contain no ammonia at all.

"Second—That neither the Peruvian nor the unmixed Super-Phosphates produces so well as a combination of the two, or as a commercial Fertilizer containing both super-phosphate and ammonia, like the Carolina Fertilizer, which has produced better results for me than any other commercial Fertilizer.

ATLANTA:

FRIDAY, MARCH 17, 1871.

☞ Russia denies that alleged secret treaty with Prussia.

☞ The South Carolina negro Congressmen are down on amnesty. Black Elliott said it was paying a premium on treason and disloyalty.

◆

☞ The enterprising Missouri Immigration Society, has invited the people of Alsace, who are said to be very indisposed to German rule, to emigrate to Missouri.

◆

☞ Sumner has determined, it is said, not to make his big speech against Grant. He has been so overwhelmingly sustained by his party, that he thinks he can afford to lay on his oars.

☞ Changes are rumored in the committees of the United States Senate. Cameron will resign as Chairman of Foreign Relations to be Chairman of Elections. This better suits his qualifications. Morton will take, it is said, the old place of Sumner, that Cameron gives up.

MEXICO AND MAXIMILIAN.—In the United States and Mexican Commission in the case of Charles J. Jarsen vs. Mexico, the Commission recently decided the broad principle that no reclamation lies against the Republic of Mexico for wrongs inflicted by the Maximilian interventionists.

Clayton.

That fellow Powell Clayton, Governor of Arkansas, must be a sharp one. He was the political owner of the State. He was elected United States Senator for six years, but still wanted to manage the State. So he maneuvered to get Lieutenant Governor Johnson ousted, and to this purpose corrupted the Supreme Court. Clayton and his judicial tool were impeached, and Johnson triumphed. But Clayton was equal to the occasion.

He resigned his Senatorship, killed impeachment, bought up Johnson, and has been reelected to the United States Senate. The Arkansas Legislature seems to be in the market. Clayton spent his money freely. Seventy-five thousand dollars bought up thirteen shoddy Conservative Arkansas legislators—a rate of nearly six thousand dollars per head.

With a Radical Legislature, and a carpet-bag dynasty, a sharp chap like Clayton can do much. What he can't engineer he can buy.

Verily, the history of Radicalism is instructive.

Since writing the above, we find that Clayton is about to sell out Johnson. He made him Secretary of State, and now proposes to kick him out of that office. Radical all over.

Blodgett and Fowler.

There is a very material difference between the cases. Senator Fowler was elected on the 4th of May, 1865, for the term which commenced the 4th of March previous. There was an existing vacancy to be filled by election, and it was so filled. On the same day the Hon. David T. Patterson was elected to fill out the unexpired term commencing March 4, 1863. These elections were made more than a year before the passage of the act of Congress of July 25, 1866, to regulate the times and manner of holding elections for Senators in Congress. Foster Blodgett was "elected" before the commencement of the term to which he claims to have been chosen, but not by the Legislature "chosen next preceding the expiration of the time" for which Dr. Miller was elected, the successor to whom Blodgett claims to have been chosen. In the case of Senator Fowler, it was the duty of the Legislature to fill an existing vacancy; in that of Blodgett, the law of Congress was disregarded by the wrong Legislature making the "election." There is no precedent whatever in the admission of Senator Fowler for admitting Blodgett. When the new Legislature of Georgia shall elect a Senator, there will be a precedent for his admission in the case of Senator Fowler.—Nashville Union & American.

An Interesting Case.

A case is now being argued before the Supreme Court of the United States, which excites very general interest, particularly among Presbyterian people. It is the case of Watson and others vs. Avery, etc., on appeal from the United States Circuit Court for the Kentucky District. The property in contest is the church property of the Walnut Street Presbyterian Church of Louisville; but the questions involved concern the whole Presbyterian denomination. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in the United States of America, felt so much interest in the case that they made an appropriation to meet the expenses of litigation and employ counsel. In 1865, the Presbyterians of Louisville put forth a document called the Declaration and Testimony, which arraigned the General Assembly for its deliverances during the war in reference to doctrine, loyalty and freedom. In 1866, the Assembly arraigned the signers of this paper, and passed the order known as the ipso facto order, which declared that the signers, until their cases were disposed of, should not sit in any church court higher than a church session.

It further declared that any Presbytery and Synod which admitted them to seats in violation of said order should be dissolved, and those ministers and elders who adhere to the action of the Assembly should be recognized as the Presbyterian Synod in connection with the Assembly. After this order, the Presbytery of Louisville and the Synod of Kentucky divided—one side adhering to the Assembly, and one renouncing its jurisdiction—the latter now being with the Southern Presbyterian Church. The case involves a question as to conflict of jurisdiction between the Federal and State courts in Kentucky. The court will be called upon to decide the relation which exists between the civil and ecclesiastical tribunals in this country, and what effect is to be given in the civil courts to ecclesiastical decisions. The constitution of the Church is before the court, one side affirming and the other denying the constitutionality of the Assembly's action of 1866, and its various deliverences during the war on doctrine, fredom and loyalty. It is said that the case incident involves Center College, of Kentucky. The Southern side is represented by Thomas W. Bullitt, of Louisville, while the other side is represented by General John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, and Solicitor General Bristow.

Sumner.

Sumner has become contented with his displacement from that committee. His dudgeon is done. His rage is over. He is as serene and satisfied as a sun-flower. He wouldn't take it back, or have it undone, or recall it for a kingdom. It has been the occasion of such huge additions of importance; it has furnished his vanity so much food, and it has stirred such a fuss and scatteration—such a noisy, deafening hullabaloo—that Sumner takes it like a kitten does milk, or with the avidity of an epicure swallowing oysters on the half shell.

Battalions of horse powers couldn't drag him willingly out of that scrape. It made him the reigning sensation. It hauled him conspicuously into public gaze. It evoked showers of coveted popular sympathy, that Sumner, above all men in the country, knows how to enjoy. Columns of indignant type have filled the papers. Whole tubs of ink have flowed.

Happy, jolly Chawles! Such a delightful hubbub this thing has created. That tornado is nothing to it. And all about Sumner. That martyr sits in his regal rooms in Washington, and as he opens sympathetic dispatches of encouragement, and peruses whole newspaper sides of exhilirating comment, and realizes that all this clatter is about him, and his soul is emparadized. He wouldn't alter it even for the intoxicating felicity of Mrs. Sumner's return to her allegiance.

Who wonders that Sumner has quit being mad about it? Such marvellous results are claimed for that removal, that his big vanity is simply stiff drunk, and the man reels in his delirious exaltation of egotism. It will split the Republican party; it will defeat Grant's renomination; it will put Sumner on the President track—all these and a thousand other vast consequences are bandied and talked, and gravely flipped to and fro in the press and on the streets, until Sumner believes every word as gospel truth, and self-complacently regards himself as the supramortal author of it all, and a demi-god to be unshipped.

Well, we can't complain at Sumner. If the Republicans are such ninnies as to allow this Puritanic sniveller to make such a fuss in their camp it is no matter for any body else to whine over.

But the thing is curious as showing the invetesate uniformity of Sumner's luck. He is the genius of "Much Ado About Nothing" its living illustration. Brooks thrashed him and made him a life-time Senator. That speech on the Clarendon-Johnson treaty put England to fussing like a wet hen over nothing. And now Grant has taken up the cudgel, and pummeled the accidental and chronically martyred Charles into a national sensation, and there is no telling it may not land Sumner in Grant's seat.

But Sumner enjoys it. Let us come back to our original proposition. Sumner likes it. The more gabble that is spatted about, the better Sumner will be pleased. And with this view we have written this article, and philanthropically added our mite to Sumner's folly and Sumner's joy.

☞ If New Hampshire shall go for the Democracy, it will be a sign of an impending general Republican break-up.—New York Herald.

The Baxter's Libel Suit.

A good deal has been said about John Baxter's libel suit against the Knoxville Whig and Register, and his heavy verdict. A Tennessee paper gives the following explanation of this remarkable case. The matter originated in difficulties between Colonel Baxter and General Mabry:

A fierce and bitter war of words had existed between them, and that it led to a war of bullets, in which Colonel Baxter was wounded; and that by the arrangements of friends, personal hostilities were to cease, and any differences existing between them were to be settled by an appeal to the courts; that suit was brought against Mabry in the Chancery Court, and that in the management of his own case, Mabry "purported" to have delivered a speech in open court, characterized by great bitterness; and that he had slips of that speech printed and enclosed them to several editors, with an order for publication as a paid-for advertisement; and that several editors, knowing General Mabry to be pecuniarily responsible, did insert the speech in their columns as an advertisement, without even the formality of reading it.

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

SPECIMENS OF PARTISAN RASCALITY IN CONGRESS.

From a Donn Platt letter to Cincinnati Commercial.]

When Messrs. Harris, Morphis, McKee and Pierce, who claimed to be elected members of Congress from Mississippi, came forward to take the oath, Mr. Kerr, of Indiana, objected. He objected on the ground that these gentlemen had not been elected, nor did they hold any certificate showing such election, executed by the Governor or other proper officer of the State of Mississippi. They claimed to have been elected on the 30th day of November and the 1st day of December, in 1869, and in proof of this, exhibited certain certificates signed by General Ames, military commander of the District. How such certificates of such an election could be considered valid bothers one considerably. If General Ames was in command of the State as Military Governor, it was certainly not in a condition to return members of Congress. If, on the contrary, the State had been redeemed, General Ames could not be in command.

I give you this as a specimen of the way in which business is done when it comes to counting up a majority for one party, among the so-called Congressmen from the South. Any one possessed of the slightest showing on paper can be sworn in, provided that he is a Radical, and will sustain the Protectionists of Pennsylvania and New England. I I know one gentleman, formerly from Logan county, Ohio, who remained a member of the Forty-first Congress from beginning to end, with a majority of over three thousand against him in his own district. The Clerk decided, when his name was enrolled, that the successful opponent could not take his seat because of certain disabilities not then removed, and as the minority candidate had some sort of certificate from the Governor or Secretary of State, he was sworn in and permitted to retain his seat, assisting in all the grave legislation of two years, upon that foundation. He had no more right to a seat there than I have, and yet our party winked at it, because his vote went to make up the two-thirds vote necessary to sustain the class legislation. We suffer from, and put through the infamous subsidies and jobs to which our party is committed. Yet this gentleman represented, or misrepresented Calhoun's old district in South Carolina. He has been succeeded by a negro black as the "hinges of midnight," and ignorant as a mule. And this is called reconstruction, and we go on from bad to worse, until Providence, or the Democratic party, or some other power, intervenes to save us from ourselves.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The confirmations to-day were: Davidson, Collector of the Sixth Tennessee District; Manning, Collector of Customs of Albermarle District, North Carolina.

The Senate caucus was long and stormy. From eight to ten Senators were frequently on the floor at once.

It was finally agreed to lay adjournment on the table, propose a joint commission of five Senators and seven Representatives to take evidence, instruct the Judiciary Committee to report a Ku-Klux bill, and entertain no other legislation.

In the Senate, the bill allowing the statue of Professor Morse to be placed on the public grounds passed.

The bill removing individual disability came up, but upon an amendment by Trumbull, making the removal general, it was withdrawn.

Several propositions to restore order in the South were referred.

The Senate then adjourned for caucus purposes.

In the House, Kelly rose to a personal explanation, declining to serve on Committee 13, and called attention to the circular placed on the members' desks by Butler, charging that high tariff men and Democrats had struck hands to pass the resolution. As a high tariff man, he protested against the truth of the statement.

Butler said the committee's resolution was passed by a trick and in defiance of Republican organization.

A general discussion regarding fidelity to a caucus ensued.

Blaine, calling Wheeler to the chair, took the floor. He thought Butler's letter demanded some notice from him. He asked Butler whether he did not know that he (Blaine) had written and procured the presentation of the resolution. Butler said he was not informed. Blain said he had taken the resolution to Butler in his (Blaine's) handwriting, and Butler had suggested alterations. Blaine placed Butler on the committee because he said he (Blaine) would pack the committee.

Alluding to Butler's charge, that Republicans had been coerced into voting for the committee, Blaine wanted coerced Republicans to stand up now, or forever hold their peace. None rose.

Blaine demanded of Butler, who were coerced.

Butler replied, "to say would be a betrayal of private conversation."

After further colloquy Blaine said he despised and spit upon the assertion of the man who said he had no right, as representative from Maine, to offer this or any other resolution, even Butler's insolence would not carry him to that extent. Because he had written this resolution he was accused of playing a trick upon the House.

Butler then said that he would now repeat that it was a trick.

Blaine intimated that Butler was in the habit of repeating whatever he pleased, except the truth. Blaine characterized the letter as a covert insult to the Speaker of the House, and considered it the meanest, most contemptible, most unfair attack ever made.

Butler said it was the Speaker's business to keep his seat.

Blaine retorted that Colfax had once had occasion to leave the chair to chastise Butler.

Blaine said, "God may forgive you, but I never will." Butler replied very bitterly.

Dawes, Garfield, and others attacked Butler.

The fight was on the Repulican side. Butler, Kelley, Coburn and Shellabarger were excused from the Committee.

House adjourned.

Synopsis of the Weather Reports for the past Twenty-four hours.—The era of the lowest barometer which was, on Wednesday evening, in Iowa and Illinois, now covers Lake Huron. The barometer has fallen during the day along the Atlantic coast, with fair weather on the south Atlantic, and clouds and rain on the middle and east Atlantic. Fresh south and east winds have prevailed along the Atlantic coast; the winds on the lakes have been fresh, and from the southeast and southwest. The temperature has increased very rapidly on Lake Erie and Ontario, but is decreasing in the West and South. Falling barometer and rising temperature are reported from the Rocky Mountains. Southwesterly winds have prevailed on the Gulf, but these are now replaced by fresh northerly winds.

Fresh winds and clearing up weather are indicated for Friday on the Gulf and on the south and middle Atlantic, with cloudy weather and fresh winds on the east Atlantic and lower lakes. Fresh winds on the upper lakes.

MASSACHUSETTS.

BOSTON, March 16.—Resolutions strongly denunciatory of the removal of Sumner were introduced in the Massachusetts Senate today.

The first resolution commences: "That the people of Massachusetts have seen with alarm the recent attempt on the part of the President, unhappily successful, to dictate the organization of a Senate Committee."

Another says: "The subserviency of the Senate threatens the removal of the great bulwark against Executive usurpations."

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The following is a synopsis of Butler's letter, which provoked the row in the House. He says that no good but harm only can come of it to the Republican party:

1. Because this committee was forced upon the Republicans by the nearly unanimous vote of the Democratic party in the House, aided by some twenty or thirty Republicans only, against the decision of the majority of that party in a duly called caucus of the members of the House.

2. Because this committee was raised by a combination of the high tariff Republicans with the Democracy.

3. Because such committee would be wholly powerless for any good purpose.

4. Because my service as chairmain of the committee would furnish the best electioneering document that could be placed in the hands of the Democracy in the coming contest—in this, that the report of the committee would be wholly nugatory, illusory and useless, to show the exact state of things at the South. Whenever and wherever the committee would go, there would be sunshine and peace, and we should be compelled so to report. Where we were not and could not be, banded murder, robbery and arson would stalk abroad at night, to be disbanded by the rising sun.

Other reasons are given of the same general purport, and, in conclusion, he says:

"I am compelled to take this mode to address you in declining to serve, because the announcement of the committee was not made by the Speaker till after the vote of adjournment had been taken, and immediately thereupon his hammer fell, by which he adjourned the House, so as to preclude the possibility of resigning the place thus attempted to be forced upon me at the time.

"I believe I can demonstrate, even if a majority of a parliamentary body can force a Massachusetts man off a committee at their pleasure, that it is quite another thing for the Speaker to force another on a committee against his consent."

During the debate Stevenson said: "If there was hope for any other action than a bill at the present session, disorganized as the Republican party was by the factions, and spite and hates which disgraced it, it was in this committee. He foresaw the only hope for a remedy for the loyal people of the South was in the proposed investigation. He, as one to conduct it, did not despair of good results. He proposed to stand his ground."

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The French Relief Committee asked that the United States ship Relief be sent here from Philadelphia, to complete her cargo.

The gunboat Shawmut was placed in commission to-day.

LOUISIANA.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—The Republican states that the Legislative committee have selected the grounds for a State House on the lower line of the Foucher property, fronting on St. Charles Avenue, runing back to Fourth street. Price $100,000.

P. Harris, on trial before the United States Circuit Court for counterfeiting United States coin, was found guilty.

SAN DOMINGO.

SAMANA BAY, February 23.—United States steamer Nantasket, from San Domingo City, arrived with news from the commissioners.

There is considerable excitement there over the official announcement that the inhabitants of Boni and San Christoval had hauled down the Dominican colors and raised the American flag. Commissioner Howe was investigating the matter.

The revolutionists of Salnaves were marching against Hayti to overthrow Soget and place a Lieutenant at the head of the government.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, March 16.—The Commission has arrrived here. All well.

The Haytiens are bitterly opposed to anexation, but the Commissioners are everywhere received with civility. Mr. Wade is preparing a short preliminary report.

On the second day after their arrival, Wade and Howe called on the President, and speeches were made. Wade announced that they did not wish to leave the Island without paying their respects to the President of the Haytien Republic, and hoped that the amicable feelings between the people of both Nations would long continue.

Soget replied in the same spirit, and at the close of the conference, said he would try and visit the commission; but on account of the popular feeling against the presence of the commission in the harbor, he is not expected to do so.

FRANCE.

PARIS, March 16.—A number of Germans have purchased a piece of ground at Bougiville, in the arrondissment of Versailles, for the purpose of burying their dead countrymen, who have been temporarily interred near by.

Precautionary measures have been adopted by the French authorities against communicating infection to the people and soldiers from the unburied corpses. Also, against the spread of rinderpest among the cattle.

Another radical journal has been seized by the police.

The Orleans railway has been delivered by the Germans into the hands of the French.

It is reported that newspaper stamp duty has been re-arranged at two centimes daily on all journals, both in Paris and the departments. Political journals must each lodge 24,000 francs with the department of finance as security for the payment of the duty.

The Rouen Independent, for advising a display of emblems of mourning during the review of the German troops, has been suppressed and its proprietor fined a thousand francs.

◆

☞ Sumner is now a greater man than ever. The application of the Republican party boot which lifts him out of the chair as the head of the Committee on Foreign Relations, elevates him to the seat of a martyr. It has done for him what Preston Brooks' gutta percha cane did for him sixteen years ago. It has excited sympathy for him, and this is both a balsam for his wounds and a stepping-stone to his ambition.—Augusta Constitutionalist.

◆

☞ Sumner was struck down by the very carpet-baggers whom he so much assisted in getting into the Senate. Ames, Boreman and Brownlow were among the first to vote against him. Then Lewis Pool, Robertson, etc. Boreman owes his seat to the division of Virginia. Lewis and the rest owe theirs to Sumner's reconstruction policy.

PARIS.

The Tribute Paid to its Immorality by the Americans.

"And, mark it, all the world pays court to Paris the harlot, and never dreams of Paris the saint. The Americans and the English prostrate themselves and all they possess before Paris the harlot, and never give a sou to Paris the saint. Yes, my dear friend, you Americans—I grieve to make so grave a charge—are the best customers at this market of virtue and heroism. For twenty years, particularly, you have done your utmost to help us on to this precipice, over which we have now fallen. You have heaped fuel upon the fire that has burned us up. Americans who revel in the rottenness of Paris are the most violent upon the corruption of the capital.

"They go where I, an old Parisian, have never been, and would not go. Americans make discoveries in Paris which the inhabitants do not know of. And for wallowing in the filth thus industriously searched out, commend me to the Americans. They glory in having found it, and yet they glory in being opposed to it all! They are viciously fond of what they are virtuously indignant at. American women go where Parisian women of respectability are never seen, and American gentlemen do what a French gentleman would scorn to do. So you see that, while I admit the frightful degeneracy of our people, I must say I think the abuse we get from our guests is hardly fair, while these guests show so much relish for what they affect to detest.

"What wonder if our sea of filth runs over, if every foreigner who comes to us contributes his bucketful? How many Englishmen come here to spend a life of debauchery which they dare not attempt at home, and yet every man of them is careful to discourse to us and to his countrymen upon the licentiousness which prevails in Paris! And now that we are down, fallen, crushed under this stupendous avalanche of iniquity and corruption, these virtuous Anglo-Saxons are the most furious in their denunciations of us, and the most pious in their tracing out the origin and intention of the judgment.

"After contributing what they could to our present situation, they commend us to the retributions of a righteous Providence, in the hope that the terrible chastisement will bring us to a more upright manner of life. But if Paris were an upright city, how many Anglo-Saxons would make it their home? If Paris were puritanical, how many Americans would care to visit it, or having visited it, would find anything attractive in it? But I am boring you."

THOMAS A. SCOTT.

THE PROSPECT OF RAILROAD MONOPOLY CONTROLLING THE ELECTION OF 1872.

The election of Thomas A. Scott, of Pennsylvania, to the office of President of the Union Pacific Railroad is an event of far-reaching significance. Mr. Scott is becoming a very important man in a political point of view. He may exercise an almost decisive influence over the next Presidential election. He has long been at the head of the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, with a capital of fifty millions of dollars, wielding a political influence which generally regulates the course of legislation in that State. Only a few days ago a member of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives rose and said that "if Tom Scott had no further business with that Legislature, he moved that they now adjourn."

Mr. Scott also controls the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne Railroad, which connects Pittsburg and Chicago, and has great power in Ohio and Indiana. He has his hand on the great Northwestern line, which unites Chicago and Omaha, and forms with his other roads an unbroken connection between the Atlantic and Pacific. He likewise holds under his thumb the Columbus, Chicago and Indiana Central, with connections which make a route across Indiana and Illinois, and extend his operations to St. Louis and Missouri. Here in the East, too, he has the New Jersey Central in his pocket, and is bargaining for the important line formed by the Camden and Amboy and New Jersey Railroads, connecting New York and Philadelphia. It is also said that he is likely soon to acquire the newly chartered Southern Pacific.

Railroad corporations form a comparatively new, but most important political engine in this country. They elect Legislatures and Governors, and rule States. Their power is constantly on the increase. Its capabilities and the ways of directing them are becoming better understood, and strong men grow bold and reckless in their use. This power is likely to be more felt in the next Presidential election than it has ever been before. It is difficult to fix the limits of the part which Thomas A. Scott may play in selecting the next occupant of the White House.—New York Sun.

This page of the paper was accidentally knocked into pi, which accounts for the awkward appearanc, and lack of reading matter in this morning issue.

WE learn that Dalton was visited by a tornado yesterday, but have received no particulars.

TWENTY-SEVENTY inmates at the calaboose yesterday.

CAPTAIN DUPONT, of Holderness and Dupont, presented to the Orphan Free School, on yesterday, a handsome map of the United States.

FINE WATCHES.—Messrs. Sharp & Ford have just received a large lot of splendid watches. They are as fine as can be found in any market.

AN intelligent gentleman from Jasper county informed us on yesterday that there was not a white Radical in that county.

THE house of Mr. Holland, on Hunter street, caught on fire yesterday, but it was soon extinguished.

PERKINS, colored, of Bibb county, was commissioned yesterday as county Treasurer. The division of the other offices will be made to-day.

WALLACE & FOWLER sell, this afternoon, nine lots on Marietta street, just beyond the Fair Ground bridge. Don't overlook the advertisement.

THE JAPANESE TROUPE, with their barrel, pipe and ladder performances, their tricks of legerdemain, in fact their extensive repertoire, will begin an engagement at DeGive's the 24th.

DURING the fire on Wednesday night some one slipped into the store of M. C. & J. F. Kiser and robbed the money drawer of $1 30 in small change. No goods have been missed as yet.

THERE were eight cases disposed of by Mayor Hammond yesterday. He raked the parties in the way of fines, to the tune of $260. That is right, Judge.

CONSIDERABLE improvements are being made in the neighborhood of the West Point Depot. A new platform has been built from Butler street to Porter & Butler's foundry.

DEGIVE'S.—The popular and beautiful drama, entitled Kathleen Mavourneen, was put upon the boards last night with a fine cast.

Kathleen Mavourneen is decidedly one of Mrs. Watkins' best impersonations. Her representation last night, was the realization of our ideal of the character. During some of her impassioned representations, we witnessed tears in the eyes of several ladies in the audience. This is a more eloquent tribute to her merit in the portraiture of Kathleen than a reporter's pen can pay her. From beginning to end, Mrs. Watkins was the woman—the tenderly, sorrowing woman—the intensely earnest woman, and the loving woman.

The character is a strong one, and requires great power and passion for its delineation. Both power and passion were in the role last night, and the result was a glorious dramatic triumph for Mrs. Watkins. We have previously spoken of her singing. It was very fine last night, and was well received by the audience Mr. Watkins was complete in his impersonation of Terance O'Moon—was true to the character throughout We can almost say that he is without a rival in his delineation of Terance and his success vindicates the justness of his interpretation. His rendition last evening was received by a critical audience, and with unmistakable approval. Miss Pierson is a decidedly agreeable actress. Her personal appearance, voice and manner, are altogether in her favor. Her method is quite easy and natural, and her reading is excellent. There was nothing lacking in her impersonation of kind-hearted Kitty O'Lauery. As Cavannah, the villian, Mr. McManus was first-rate, playing with nice taste; he is a good artist. As Billy Button Cap, Mr. Paul touched the springs of laughter of many, both in the galleries and below.

☞ Although Mr. Hoar's bill for a national system of education failed of coming to a vote in the last Congress, the same project will, in some form, come before the present Congress, but perhaps not until next session.

☞ Hon. George H. Pendleton was a quiet looker-on in the Senate Chamber, when the great Charles Sumner was executed. He occupied a seat by Senator Thurman, and it seemed that he rather enjoyed the sport.

☞ One hundred and eighteen steam boiler explosions occurred in the United States in 1870, by which 326 persons were killed and 227 wounded.

☞ The Chicago Tribune announces "a bill to protect Southern loyalists in course of preparation." The news that more "loyalists" are in course of preparation, and, too, that they are to be protected while being prepared, is, to say the least, very bad.

☞ "It may be possible," says Sumner, "that on some occasion, when at dinner, Mr. Fish may have asked me how I liked the terrapin or the oysters, and I was too busily engaged to hear what he said, but I do not remember when I refused to give a civil answer to a civil question, no matter by whom propounded." "It is just possible," observed a wag of a Senator, who heard of this, "that Fish was offended because Sumner refused to give his opinion on a branch of the piscatorial family, though somewhat remotely related. Perhaps Sumner was afraid to say that the terrapin was a slow sort of fish."

☞ Hon. Jacob P. Blair, of Missouri, elected as a liberal, don't know where he belongs. He first refused to go into either caucus, but came into the House and voted for General Morgan for Speaker, and then turned around at once and voted for McPherson (Republican) for Clerk. Friday night he was discovered in the Republican caucus, and it was moved to put him out.

☞ O'Donovan Rossa and other prominent Irishment in New York have issued a long address to their countrymen in America, urging the formation of societies in this country to aid in securing the independence of Ireland.

☞ Twenty-one Republican journals at the North, including the New York Sun, Harpers' Weekly, Springfield Republican, Boston Transcript, Boston Advertiser, New York Post, Chicago Tribune, Wheeling Intelligencer, Washington Chronicle, Philadelphia Bulletin, Cleveland Herald, Detroit Tribune, Philadelphia Post, Toledo Blade, Cincinnati Commercial and others, are hauling the Administration over the coals for the deposition of Charles Sumner.

THE PRINCESS BORGHESE.—None of the chefs d' œuvres of antiquity produced anything half so lovely or marvelously formed as this sister of Napoleon.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 1.—I feel that we have now an article of gin suitable for such cases as that remedy is adapted to.
DR. J. W. BRIGHT.

"Schnapps" is a remedy in chronic catarrhal complaints, etc.

I take great pleasure in bearing highly creditable testimony to its efficacy as a remedial agent in the diseases for which you recommend it. Having a natural tendency to the mucous surfaces, with a slight degree of stimulation, I regard it as one of the most important remedies in chronic catarrhal affections, particularly those of the genito-urinary apparatus. With much respect, your obedient servant,
CHAS. A. LEAS, M. D., New York.

26 PINE STREET, NEW YORK, Nov. 21, 1867—UDOLPHO WOLFE, ESQ., Present: Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of a sample of your "Schiedam Schnapps," with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the simple distilled spirits.

The examination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deleterious substances which are sometimes employed in the adulteration of liquors. I would not hesitate to use myself, nor to recommend to others, for medical purposes, the "Schiedam Schnapps" as an excellent and unobjectionable variety of gin. Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS. A. SEELY, Chemist.

CHEMICAL AND TECHNICAL LABORATORY, 18 EXCHANGE PLACE, New York, Nov. 25, 1867.—Udolpho Wolfe, Esq.: Dear Sir—The undersigned have carefully and thoroughly analyzed a sample of your "Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps," selected by ourselves, and have found the same free from all organic or inorganic substances, more or less injurious to health. From the result of our examination, we consider the article one of superior quality, healthful as a beverage, and effectual in its medicinal qualities.
Respectfully yours,
(Signed) ALEX. TRIPPEL, Chemist.

ROSADALIS.

The Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of Scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the Blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro, Tenn., says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my whole body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.

JOB PRINTING NEATLY EXECUTED AT THE CONSTITUTION OFFICE.

The Daily Constitution.

HOMEWARD.

A gallop through the mountain way,
With click, click, click, against the flint,—
Hard following on the flying day,
That backward flings a fiery tint.

The twilight pines stand dense and grim,
And sigh and sigh, "The day is dead;"
The virgin birches, tall and slim,
Wave shadowy arms across the red.

In brooding peace the uplands lie,
Stretched camly in their evening rest:
As through their lifted calm I fly,
On, onward, to the happy West.

Oh West, heart-red, burn close before!
Pale, dreamy East, float far behind!
No pause, good steed—a few miles more,
In yonder glow our rest we'll find.

Urgent, we reach the downward hill,
The village darkens far below—
Has aught befallen her of ill?
My eager heart leaps down to know.

A swift descent along the ridge,
Through shady glooms and breaks of light
A cheery clatter on the bridge,
Then up the street where falls the night.

Across the dark a hearth-fire's gleam,
A graceful shadow on the wall;
'Twas false, thank God, that last night's dream,
That something evil did befall.

From out the door a ruddier shine
Meets vanished daylight's golden trace;
And starry eyes turned up to mine—
One light in heaven and home and face!

Autumnal Reflections.

The reapers now with scythe in hand,
Amid the yellow corn-fields stand;
What pleasure 'tis to watch each cutter,
And think of future bread and butter!

End of an Adventuress.

AN OLD SCANDAL REVIVED—THE PRETENDED DAUGHTER OF AMERICUS VESPUCCI.

From the Albany Argus.]

A Washington letter-writer revives the old romantic tale of the wily Italian girl, who, finding herself in Washington against her will, by royal command, so fascinated grave Senators by her great personal charms and graces of manner, that she barely failed to obtain a large concession of the public land on the pretense that she was a descendant of the putative discoverer of America. Mr. Adams was much impressed by the representations of the young woman, and, apparently duped by her plausible story, was the champion of her application to Congress, if he did not suggest it. Mr. Cushing was another of her many advocates, and it is a marvel that the scheme was not successful. It was during the reign of Louis Phillippe, that the affair occurred. M. Pontois, the French Minister, received a parcel by express from over the sea, which was destined to create no small stir in Washington. The letter-writer says:

"This parcel was done up in the person of a certain Mademoiselle Vespucci, whose undue influence over the son of Louis Phillippe had aroused the jealousy of the young gentleman's mother. Seizing upon the accidental identity of names borne by the too fascinating beauty and the man who had succeeded in perpetuating his own by means of a stolen discovery, the Queen sent Mademoiselle Vespucci to Washington to seek her fortune. 'I only ask a leetle piece,' said that lady, 'of your big country which my ancestors did find for you.' She would add, 'I am a beggar, you see. I have nothing.' She was a beggar after the fashion of those Mother Goose has commemorated, who come in 'velvet gowns,' for her dressing is recollected as rich and elegant in the extreme.

"Her beauty was very striking, and for a time the so-called descendant of the worthy Americus was the sensation of Washington, and seemed likely to obtain all she wanted. But when the first enthusiasm began to die away her appeals seemed less eloquent and touching, and a final blow was struck to her claim by the uncle of Senator Thurman, who evidently thought the family of the elder Vespucci had received quite sufficient from our continent in naming it. So the 'leetle piece of the big country' was not given, and this queenly beggar, like many another with better founded pretensions, vanished from the capital and was forgotten."

We are tempted to supplement this veritable history with some particulars that have not been heretofore published, and which will round off the biography of this adventuress symmetrically.

Americus Vespucci, for that was her real name, was a native of one of the Italian cities, which we do not now recollect. She was respectably connected, but the family had become impoverished, and she and her sister were employed in the establishment of a lithographer. The sister bore a good reputation, and subsequently married a man who supported her comfortably. Americus came to grief early, and, after a series of intrigues which alienated her family, caught the Duke of Orleans in her toils. She was strikingly handsome, of a fine commanding figure, full of wit and ingenuity, quite accomplished, superficially, and the young Prince was so much enamored of her that his mother became alarmed, and sent her out of the country.

She was in Boston at the time the Prince de Joinville visited the city and attended the ball given in his house. He recognized her, and was startled and scandalized by her presence. It was said at the time she addressed him, imploring him not to expose her, and that he complied with her request on condition that she should withdraw from the company at once. We next hear of her occupying a spacious mansion at Ogdensburg, on the St Lawrence, under the protection of a wealthy landholder, who had extensive pecuniary connections in Amsterdam. The house and grounds were surrounded by a high wall, and she lived here in a state of utter seclusion, having no intercourse with the surrounding world.

The gentleman had large business engagements, from home a great deal, and frequently for long periods. Mademoiselle, who was naturally impatient and exacting, grew moody and discontented, and at last his return was not greeted with much enthusiasm. She had strong appetites, and high living produced its inevitable consequences. With advancing years her charms diminished, and she got to be corpulent, gross, and almost repulsive, and her friend was impressed with the truth of what the poet says about our pleasant vices becoming scourges at last. She finally grew fretful and unreasonable, with alternations of sudden malignity, occasionally threatening his life and her own, until a state of things supervened which was insufferable. Some ten or twelve years since a compromise was effected, and the last we heard of Americus Vespucci she was living quietly in Paris on a handsome allowance, its payment being contingent upon her American friend remaining unmolested by the descendant of the man who did not discover America.

EUROPEAN TOURS.

WHAT THEY TEACH THE AMERICAN YOUNG MEN.

A young man who had been on a tour through Europe, where he had learned very practical ideas of flirtation, found reciprocating glances from a rather pretty girl during the services of a West-side church, and certain movements of the handkerchief, that led him to accost her the very next time he met her on the street. His first greeting, sufficiently polite at first, was not repulsed, but forming his estimate of her character upon the customs of flirtation in Paris or Berlin, he was not with her half an hour before he made propositions which brought the blush to the girl's cheek, for she was simply humoring herself in what she considered as a "harmless flirtation." She was, in fact, the minister's daughter; but the fault was so far her own that she could blame nobody but herself, and learned a lesson which she will not be apt to forget.—Chicago Times.

I beg leave to call the attention of the reader to testimonials in favor of the Schnapps:

I feel bound to say that I regard your Schnapps as being in every respect pre-eminently pure, and deserving of medical patronage. At all events it is the purest possible article of Holland Gin, heretofore unobtainable, and as such may be safely prescribed by physicians. DAVID L. MOTT, M. D., Pharmaceutical Chemist, New York.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 1.—I feel that we have now an article of gin suitable for such cases as that remedy is adapted to. DR. J. W. BRIGHT.

"Schnapps" is a remedy in chronic catarrhal complaints, etc.

I take great pleasure in bearing highly creditable testimony to its efficacy as a remedial agent in the diseases for which you recommend it. Having a natural tendency to the mucous surfaces, with a slight degree of stimulation, I regard it as one of the most important remedies in chronic catarrhal affections, particularly those of the genito-urinary apparatus. With much respect, your obedient servant,
CAHS. A. LEAS, M. D., New York.

26 Pine Street, New York, Nov. 21, 1867—Udolpho Wolfe, Esq., Present: Dear Sir—I have made a chemical examination of a sample of your "Schiedam Schnapps," with the intent of determining if any foreign or injurious substance had been added to the simple distilled spirits.

The examination has resulted in the conclusion that the sample contained no poisonous or harmful admixture. I have been unable to discover any trace of the deleterious substances which are sometimes employed in the adulteration of liquors. I would not hesitate to use myself, nor to recommend to others, for medical purposes, the "Schiedam Schnapps" as an excellent and unobjectionable variety of gin. Very respectfully yours,
(Signed) CHAS. A. SEELY, Chemist.

Chemical and Technical Laboratory, 18 Exchange Place, New York, Nov. 25, 1867.—Udolpho Wolfe, Esq.: Dear Sir—The undersigned have carefully and thoroughly analyzed a sample of your "Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps," selected by ourselves, and have found the same free from all organic or inorganic substances, more or less injurious to health. From the result of our examination, we consider the article one of superior quality, healthful as a beverage, and effectual in its medicinal qualities.

Respectfully yours,
(Signed) ALEX. TRIPPEL, Chemist.

ROSADALIS.

ROSADALIS

The Great American Health Restorer, purifies the blood and cures Scrofula, Syphilis, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Diseases of Women, and all Chronic Affections of the Blood, Liver and Kidneys. Recommended by the Medical Faculty and many thousands of our best citizens.

Read the testimony of Physicians and patients who have used Rosadalis; send for our Rosadalis Guide to Health Book, or Almanac for this year, which we publish for gratuitous distribution; it will give you much valuable information.

Dr. R. W. Carr, of Baltimore, says:

I take pleasure in recommending your Rosadalis as a powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—one in a case of secondary syphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken five bottles of your medicine. The other is a case of Scrofula of long standing, which is rapidly improving under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the formula by which your Rosadalis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.

Dr. Sparks, of Nicholasville, Ky., says he has used Rosadalis in cases of Scrofula and Secondary Syphilis with satisfactory results—as a cleaner of the Blood I know no better remedy.

Samuel G. McFadden, Murfreesboro, Tenn., says:

I have used seven bottles of Rosadalis, and am entirely cured of Rheumatism; send me four bottles, as I wish it for my brother, who has scrofulous sore eyes.

Benjamin Bechtol, of Lima, Ohio, writes I have suffered for twenty years with an inveterate eruption over my whole body; a short time since I purchased a bottle of Rosadalis and it effected a perfect cure.
